Should I send my child to school?

We know that a child must be feeling well in order to maximize the learning experience. We also know that regular school attendance is necessary for optimal learning. You know your child best. If he/she does not feel well and will not be able to fully participate in routine school activities please keep your child home. But, we still ask ourselves, "should I send my child to school today?" The following are some guidelines to help you answer that question?

- Fever - your child should remain at home with a fever greater than 100. Your child can return to school after he/she has been fever free for 24 hours without fever reducing medicine such as Tylenol or Motrin.
- If your child has a persistent, productive cough you should keep your child home and consult with your health care provider.
- Vomiting or diarrhea - a child with vomiting and/or diarrhea should stay at home and return to school only after being symptom free for 24 hours.
- A child who has started antibiotics needs to be on medication for 24 hours before considered non-contagious and able to return to school.
- A child who has started on antibiotic eye drops for bacterial conjunctivitis (pink eye) needs to be on the antibiotic drops for 24 hours before returning to school.

Our goal is to have your child at school and learning. We also need to make sure that we keep Cooper's Poynt Family School a healthy place to learn. If at any time a question still remains. "Should I send my child to school?" Please do not hesitate to call the school nurse's office at (856) 966 5370 ext 19432.
